

Seven Ways We Each Can And Should Help Israel Now

1. Download the Red Alert app for your smartphone and use it

The app alerts you whenever a siren sounds in Israel to warn of an attack. When you hear the siren:

- Direct your thoughts to Israel.
- Pray.
- Speak up and tell your friends, your colleagues, and anyone you know what Israel is facing.

2. Reach beyond American based reporting to read about Israel from Israelis

- Israel Hayom English Edition <http://www.israelhayom.com/>
- Jerusalem On Line <http://www.jerusalemonline.com/>
- The Jerusalem Post: <http://www.jpost.com/>
- The Times of Israel <http://www.timesofisrael.com/>
- Ynet News (Yedioth Media Group) <http://www.ynetnews.com/>

3. Post, share, tweet and email

Use social media to show your support for Israel. Follow CJP Israel Advocacy on Facebook and Twitter to find articles to post on your own wall or re-tweet on your Twitter feed.

- Tweet using the hashtags, #StandUpForIsrael, #Just15Seconds and #IsraelUnderFire. Follow @CJPIsrael for re-tweetable up-to-the-minute updates.
- Share pro-Israel images and stories on Facebook! Find sharable pro-Israel images at CJPIsrael on Facebook and Twitter and share them on your page.

4. Tell Israel's side

Engage with your family and friends and co-workers to get out the truth. The world has become increasingly hostile to Israel, whether it's through the misguided, hateful boycott, divestment and sanctions campaigns or more overt anti-Semitism.

5. Write to local newspapers

Not only the Globe and Herald, but your hometown paper, with letters telling members of your community why you support Israel's right to live in peace.

6. Call local radio shows

Hear comments about Israel that skew the facts? Call in and set the record straight.

7. Be an active commenter

Comment on stories about Israel on widely read news sites such as:

www.huffingtonpost.com

www.cnn.com

www.nbcnews.com

www.dailybeast.com
